Oxygen is the source of all life on the planet. Today the oxygen level in many major polluted cities is dangerously low and this coupled with the tight building envelopes we now have - the oxygen level in many offices (especially in the afternoon) is too low for healthy human function our inspiration in creating the INBair O₂.

• Style •

We have broken the mould with the new INBair O₂ Concentrator as we have not designed it for the medical sector but in fact for everyday users. You will see that all other oxygen concentrators look like hospital equipment and although we acknowledge that this is fine for hospitals, we don't think it would fit in offices, homes, gyms, hotel rooms etc.

We looked at and took inspiration from many of the great technology designs that you will find on the market today and decided to spare no expense with the aluminium body, sleek style, small size and soothing LED lights.

A big issue with many oxygen concentrators is the noise level and we had to combat this as no matter how good it looks - being too loud would hinder its use. We have encased the motor in silicon gel padding to absorb the volume, resulting in an industry leading low noise level.
